Not illustrated. 1884 Excerpt: ...the same time urging forward all possible efforts to collect the sum required. It cost her a tremendous effort, but the result was successful, and the existence of S. Andrews Hospital is due, under God, to the unsparing and untiring energy which she then put forth. Both these Foundations, S. Johns Home, and S. Andrews Convalescent Hospital, are within the same parish in which the House of Mercy is situated, indeed within the grounds attached to the House of Mercy. A third Foundation within the same parish, yet somewhat farther from the House of Mercy, grew up under her fostering care. Commencing with a little day school in a poor cottage contiguous to the wretched hovels from which the first Penitents of the House of Mercy were drawn, it has gradually developed into S. Stephens Mission House (built in 1867), the High School and College, with the stately Church, and the Day Schools for the poor, forming the ecclesiastical centre of a new and large district, now separated from the Parish of Clewer, and containing about 2,000 of a purely labouring class. These were comparatively home works. In 1860 the Community planted its first Mission in London, at S. Barnabas, Pimlico, then under the charge of the Rev. G. Cosby White. It was the second entrance into London of a Sisterhood having its head quarters out of London, an experiment as to the possibility of the harmonious working of Sisters, not indigenous, with the Parish Priest. There can be no question as to the difficulty of such a cooperation, involving, as it does, the mutual action of two distinct authorities. That it was successful was largely due to Mother Harriets wisdom and breadth of sympathy, and her ability to look at questions as they arose from both points of view. The S. Barnabas Mission r...
