

A Divine Transition is a true, court-documented story about an elderly, developmentally disabled woman, Marion Hume. The author, Patti Harter, was her guardian who unknowingly fulfilled the remarkable requests made on Marions behalf by her deceased mother in a sequestered Last Will and Testament she had never seen. Partly autobiographical, A Divine Transition is poignant and heartwarming. It will leave you believing in divine providence and better understanding the metaphysical nature of the universe. Author BioWhile spending much of her time as a human rights advocate, Patti Harter earned her living as a discounter for the Society of Professional Engineers in Aerospace. As a sponsor, promoter, and spokeswoman of long-term health care she has worked with the Sisters of Providence and the Association for Retarded Citizens, and has also volunteered her services with the National Indian Child Welfare Association. Upon retirement, she moved to Eastern Washington and initiated a dog rescue program. This is her first book.
