

The Memoirs of the Life of Edward Gibbon: With Various Observations and Excursions (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Memoirs of the Life of Edward Gibbon: With Various Observations and Excursions Nay, even in a fourth version, recasting the sentence, he said: The simple charms of nature and society detained me at the foot of the Alps till the ensuing spring Whatsoever may have been the fruits of my education, he wrote in another. Passage, they must be ascribed to the fortunate shipwreck which cast me on the shores of the Lemman Lake. The metaphor was too bold to be allowed to pass, so that these fruits were ascribed to the fortunate banishment which placed me at Lausanne Writing of his return to England from his continental tour, he said: I tore myself from the embraces of Paris.
